

The campsite is located right on Sparks Creek, just west of Mile 17 about 2/10 of a mile. It was relocated May 17, 2014 and again with one fire ring on east side of creek June 13, 2020. The old fire ring sites had become so compacted from use over the years. One of the main sources of compaction is not just a site being used, but mainly campers NOT fluffing up the leaves where they had put their tents or hammocks when they get ready to leave a camp.

Directions: The hike in from Rocky Point/Mile 18 west is the best (it is about 1.3 miles.) The trail comes down through the cliffs at Rocky Point and it's downhill all the way. Just west of Mile 17, the trail turns left and you cross Sparks Creek on stepping stones and the trail continues along the stream a short ways, then uphill about 100 yards to the signs that mark the campsite. Take the short access trail downhill left from there to the site. There is a sign pointing to a bridge you cross to get to the designated campsite/metal fire ring just across the creek.

Alternate directions: Go east on the PMT from Dowdell's Knob, past Brown Dog Campsite (near Mile 16) and continue about a mile. Watch for signs showing the boundary of this site to the south (The park boundary with private land is about 250 yards south of the campsite.)

There are signs on the west side of the creek pointing east to a new bridge across the creek that leads to campsite and fire-ring across the bridge .

Water at the site is reliable all year, even dry months

Signs noting boundary of camp, old site closed (and do not camp, or build campfires there.)
